

Abstract of the Invention

This invention relates to an Internet or other broadband computer-based networked system, operated by a service provider that enables members of the system provider network, which may be patients, family members, employees or others, to assemble, update, enhance, analyze, correct, broker, securely store and transmit, certify and otherwise manage the medical records and, under appropriate circumstances, the medical records of family, friends, clients or customers and integrates those medical records and their updating around the patient.